

Democrats swept the November 7th election, gaining two new Democratic trifectas in New Jersey and Washington State, beating Republicans on their own maps in Virginia, and carrying special legislative elections nationwide. As the major player in electing Democrats to state legislatures, the DLCC is thrilled by these results and looks forward to continuing to strengthen and rebuild the Democratic party from the ground up ahead of the 2018 midterms and crucial 2020 redistricting.

VIRGINIA HOUSE

Democrats picked up the most seats in the House of Delegates since 1897. A diverse and talented slate of Democratic candidates ran in more districts than ever, including 43 women, while shattering several historic glass ceilings. Danica Roem in HD-13 will become the only openly transgender legislator in America; Kelly Convors-Fowler is the first Filipina elected to the Virginia House; Elizabeth Guzman and Hala Ayala became the first Latinas elected to the chamber; and Kathy Tran is the first Asian-American woman elected to the chamber. The DLCC's early investments ensured Democrats had the infrastructure and field programs in place to harness the influx of grassroots enthusiasm that made it possible to set a new record by knocking on over one million doors and flipping at least 15 seats from red to blue. With recounts pending, chamber control could still hang in the balance.

WASHINGTON SENATE

Democrats won back the governing majority in this chamber with a special election win in LD-45. Senior Deputy Prosecuting Attorney, DLCC Spotlight Race candidate, and now Senator-elect Manka Dhingra swept this critical special election, flipping the seat and chamber from red to blue. The DLCC contributed $745,000, on the coordinated side and independent expenditure side, toward accessing data, paid communications, recruiting volunteers, and more.

 This is a DLCC Spotlight Race; check out races.dlcc.org for a complete list of Spotlight Races.

* Prior to Manka Dhingra's victory, the Washington Senate was controlled by a coalition that gave Republicans a governing majority of the chamber. Senator-elect Dhingra's win in LD-45 flipped a previously Republican-held seat, giving Democrats control of the chamber despite the previous coalition.

GA SD-06 will have a runoff in December between two Democrats, which will break the Republican supermajority in the state Senate.

Over the course of the 2017 cycle, the DLCC raised over $10 million to help strengthen Democratic control in statehouses nationwide. The DLCC is proud of the successful programs, critical investments, and strategic actions it took during this cycle, and looks forward to supporting our legislators and candidates in upcoming special elections and throughout the 2018 midterm elections as Democrats prepare for 2020 redistricting. Below are the victories the DLCC and state Democrats celebrated on November 7, 2017:
